

Hole in the wall

A story of a lord and a lady

Taija Paju

H. Purcell, Playford 1698

D A Bm F# G D

A lord and a la-dy went a-walk - ing late - ly by the ri - ver fair that lord un-to the la-dy "Dear-est willst thou have me? I would glad - ly take thee

G A D G A D Bm Em F#m

4 1. some call Tay. Said the by my side. The sun did spy all from the clear blue sky and all the 2.

Bm Em F# Bm G A Bm A

8 birds sat still to hear the la - dy say "Will I have thee, will I? Will I take thee, will I?

D A D A D

12 I will love thee on - ly all my life!"

2. "No fortune have I" said he "but I would love thee surely and all that's mine will be thine for to share.
If this will do," said he "then I shall wed thee and I'll live to that see thou hast all thou needst".
The lady smiled as she gave her reply, said she
"Thou asketh if I shall have thee as thou art?
Will I have thee, will I? Will I take thee, will I?
I will take thee for love, not for gold!"

3. Little knew the lady her own true love was made the prince of lands on the day he was born.
"Thou hast proven worthy,
my dearest, sweetest lady,
of my heart and of the crown as well".
Such a joy was hardly seen before as when the two were wed and as the lady vowed
"Will I have thee, will I? Will I take thee, will I?
I will love thee only all my life!"